A Colorful Life: Prisoner

What has been your lowest point in life? Have you ever been as low as Joseph in a dungeon? Joseph referred to his prison as a dungeon. He said, "I have done nothing here that they should put me into the dungeon." (Genesis 40:15). I love that Joseph put it that way because we can be blunt in our low moments. Over the years, I've been near the side of hurting people in my ministry. What they say and how they say it may not be pleasant. Their words are raw and painful.

What helps you in a low moment? It doesn't help to go on social media and see how happy everyone else seems to be. It doesn't help to dwell on the negative and forget the positive. It doesn't help to push people away only to isolate ourselves from everyone. I read that "God whispers to us in our whispers, speaks in our conscience, but shouts in our pain." Time slows down during these times of life, and our minds are focused on a singular event. We may feel we are being punished or did something wrong to go through so much adversity.

We are in familiar company when it comes to unfair punishment. Joseph knew he didn't deserve to be placed in a dungeon. However, he was forced to be there because of the hands of others. What about Jesus? He faced unjust punishment and suffered, not for His sins but for our sins. It helps to know what others went through and how God provided. He will provide for us as well. May we trust in Him in the ups and downs of life.

In Him,

Josh Barnett

Tonight, Austin and I will be headed to one of our local universities to tell them about our congregation. I feel strongly that it is such an important ministry to reach out to college age young adults. This is such a unique time in their lives, and many struggle with their faith. Please pray as we look to start this outreach, that we may be a blessing to our area college students.
